This is a great family option, thanks to its shallow, deep waters, library and volleyball courts. Besides renting a car (keep in mind parking isn't the easiest), there are taxis as well as Uber, which works the same as the traditional app but will actually summon a cab for you versus a private car. Depending on the length of your stay, it may benefit you to get the Rav Kav card which allows you to buy ride packages and saves a bit of money. So, feel free to rock that bikini! Explore Old Jaffa One of the best things to do in Tel Aviv is explore the ancient port city of Old Jaffa. Banana Beach: The fun, upbeat vibe and plethora of outdoor patios make this the perfect place to watch the gorgeous sunset. The best way to enjoy the unique offerings is to book a food tour, check out the kiosks in Carmel Market, or head into a different neighbourhood each night for dinner to check out the food scene. There are no designated stops for getting on and off which makes them a bit quicker than the bus, and surprisingly enough can also be cheaper to ride. Nordau Beach: Also known as Separated Beach, this is where observant Jews typically go as men and women are separated. At the centre of this tech-forward hotel is a ÁÁÁThe HuBe ÁÁÁ, which has a kitchen and bar for grab ÁÁÁn go food, a pool table, video games, plush loungers and large workspaces that encourage collaboration and interaction among guests. Part of a chain with sister properties in Nazareth and Jerusalem, the friendly staff at this clean, dorm-style hostel can arrange tours in and around Israel and facilitate plenty of fun activities which makes this a great pick for solo travellers. One could spend hours exploring the quiet streets, ducking into the tiny boutiques or galleries, and marveling at the gorgeous views of the Tel Aviv skyline framed by the sea. Jaffa Port: This bustling harbourfront is lined with restaurants, making it a great place to grab lunch while watching the boats come and go. The city makes the most of its fab Right on the Mediterranean Sea with a long line of coast-changing beaches, dotted with surf spots, high-rise hotels, pulsating beach bars, playgrounds and a mountain of sun loungers and umbrellas. Click here to book Link Hotel & Hub: This mid-range option is conveniently located in the arts district, just steps from Rothschild Boulevard. Jaffa beach: The last surfing spot in Tel Aviv, also boasts excellent views of the old town. Jaffa Jaffa the clock tower in Jaffa If you are making an autoguided tour through Jaffa, be sure to stop at: The Wishing Bridge: Legend has it that if you are on this wooden bridge, look at the sea and make a wish, your wish will come true. Tel Aviv's Center for Esc Arts relaxes on the best beaches in Tel Aviv, if it's one thing, so it's known the Middle East, it's sand, and that means Tel Aviv has some absolutely phenomenal beaches. Guide Tip: While Israel is a modest and conservative country, it is perfectly acceptable, it is not covered on the beach in Tel Aviv unless it is © in Nordau. Bikes can be rented from anywhere from a day to a whole week, and most people opt for the package where they borrow a bicycle for up to 30 minutes, dock at another station, then take a new bike when you are ready for Continé driving to avoid additional fees after the 30-minute mark. Hapisqa Garden / Abraham Garden: an intricate stone sculpture designed to resemble a door at the top of ancient Jaffa, which represents the story of Isaac's sacrifice. Inventive chefs come from all over the world to work their magic in Tel Aviv kitchens, the result being a diverse offering of culinary prowess that draws inspiration from all corners of the Earth. Plaza de la Torre de At the center of this place is: you guessed it, a clock tower, which was built in the 1900s and soon saw other important buildings like a government house and a prison. that. that.
